Spiders at the Capitol.

Washington spiders have discovered that game is plentiful near the electric lights which illuminate the public buildings. In consequence there are so thick and numerous that portions of the architectural ornamentation are no longer visible and when torn down by the wind, or when they fall from decay, the refuse gives a dingy and dirty appearance to everything it comes in contact with. Not only this, but these adventures take possession of the portion of the ceiling of any room which receives the illumination.—Science.
